

THE DROPOUT CATS

Just Like You

I'd say, I'd say, we visit them today and stay, stay, hear what they will say Who knows, maybe they'll show us what they've got Maybe they have some answers that we've not
We could, we could talk with animals
We should, we should destroy bad chemicals we can't, we can't leave them on their own they have the right to know they're not alone
All around these worlds, I've seen people who are just like you
There's a giant show, a UFO makes your  body flowing out of your space suit
Everytime I see these purple trees, I realise we're just like you
You still have much to learn, one day we will return
Cause your ## planet is just as beautiful
You've got love & music, you are pretty hip
We've learned a lot, it was worth the trip.

Celeste

I don't know what you exactly are, but you're too gifted to ignore i've played around a while so far, haven't seen anything like you before and you're the very same like me, i can see it in your smile you expose yourself to me, i shall be with you for a while and i don't mind what you do to me, since i was blind i only care to see if you don't restrict yourself to rewind my memories to better times i'll follow you on the brightest days, in the darkest nights, on the steepest ways if there is one thing i am sure, i've never seen a thing so pure

So if you're kind, and you ARE kind, noone should get left behind i feel our minds won't be that free, when we continue to agree that you can't convince them all that it's good to be good, oh no i'll never hide behind my lies again. Celeste, can i be your friend?

I'm becoming what you are. I am proud to feel like that.
you're appealing like a catchy song, my wounds are healing and i'm going on
You can count it on two fingers, that there may be other truth-bringers.
but i don't have to insist that they should cease to exist

So if you're nice, and you ARE nice, there's no need to roll the dice.
as you are no thunderstorm, your mouth is cold but your hands are warm Despite all my hopes and fears, you are music in my ears.
And i'll never hide behind my lies again
Celeste, Celeste, you'll always be my friend.

THE DROPOUT CATS

All the time I get up, get out and get some food.
Every morning, every day, I tell ya, dude.
But I've found a way to organize my joy.
It seems to work out well and sound, I tell ya, boy.
But information feeds my pessimistic views, trying to do something I pray and change ^{my} shoes.
All the tomcats in my quarter play it cool. I'm so sick and tired of breaking the rule.
And as we feel the far-reaching appeal of sunny places, joyful kitten and a tasty meal, You're the one who steals. Your mindset isn't real.
When happiness is spreading then you don't know how to deal.
And to dropout, hey, is just another way to tell the population that it doesn't feel okay what they did that day. When hatred was awake.
When outlaws were proclaiming that my future'd be at stake.
In a way, I'm feeling guilty to be here.
Seems like certain aspects of my life are causing fear.
Every week the crowds, they gather to complain.
I tell myself, that what they do is not in vain.
Mary Sue, can I rely on what I read?
We are mammals, so we too need air to breathe.

SEVEN LIVES AND TASTY MICE 20

All I know is what I see, all I see is the light that flies to me.
But we don't oversee our misery, the complications of our big family.
And though we work hard, we could mess it up.
Keep pretending and not wanting to stop.
When it's the first time, we're standing at the gate.
It's in our nature to stay alive and mate.
What is it you gonna say?
What is it you gonna say about the sunrise?
What is it you gonna dare against the new lies?
When finally our land is getting fancy.
It's tasty, tasty, but it's getting empty.
What is it you gonna tell your offspring?
Does it mean a thing, that we are shocking?
Eventually, only one of us can win. We're furry, furry, furry, but we grin.
You just want to feed your spouse, you're not harmful, you've never killed a mouse.
It's a shame that we cannot pay, we don't blame one,
continuing to stray.
While we learn things, and learn about ourselves.
As we share thoughts with anybody else.

MONOLITH

I'm in a silent summer, but I'm used to it.
As I'm still looking for a Monolith.
Since you love apple pie, I've examined one.
Looked in the eye of a butterfly and questioned axioms.
And I know a 100-year-old man and all the tales that he tells show me what I am
He says you just have to give as much as you can
Because you are what you give like light, my friend
And so am I

I sleep and I breathe for free, I saw what I used to see But why are we so sure that this is what it seems to be with all these i've told you so's and all these i've got to go's when chemicals connect with all their great symmetry
This is a silent summer and I won't pretend that I had to win a certain ^{argument}
It's just that we ~~recover~~ from the time we spent collecting memories of improbable events.

And I know a 7-year-old girl, her shoes are pink and her knees are always sore
She said you don't have to travel around the world to find this thing that you're looking for, it's just here
Your head is low, although you starve you still say no.
You're stuck inside this feeling, try to let it go, your bones ached for all those years, mine too, that is why I know this overwhelming force, that you cannot let go.

OUR HAYSTACK

At the canals on a summer night, not knowing your heart was full of light
I met you with bright eyes and a song to sing, you were so prepared for everything
I'm thrilled by your sense for crazy things, we moved to the valley, I gave you a ring
I was shocked when I learned that it makes me leave, my condition won't ever let us be relieved

All the people and the time we live do matter to my mind
But my illness is so rare, so lay me down, we don't have time.

I'm forced to travel through time and days. I'm happy when you get to cross my ways.
You lend me your jacket on rainy nights. You'd never believe me if I wasn't right.
I know that you know what it feels like to feel what you mean and be uptight.
My love for you will never die. I know it, I saw you and I cannot lie.

Keep it quiet, you know our secret and you know, I'm coming back.
On the hillside where it's just the two of us on our haystack.

Infinite Beauty

We've forgotten the Sun's Name, why don't we do the same like we did yesterday and before.

There's too much confusion 'bout fission and fusion should we just move on, i'm not so sure but you burn so brightly and you glow when you smile i've got a reason to fantasize that on markets and fairs far from big cities lies the truth and waits to be our prize

There's infinite beauty in my world, no matter what they dance for me
you are timeless, i heard your soul ring, you can tell me everything now you spoke to me out of your mind, we are timeless like a melody there's beauty in my world, why is there none in yours?

I don't wanna sing loud, the things i sing about don't make me proud, you know what i mean but what if you wouldn't believe me even the most important thing you can dream of?
you cruise around future, but feature films fooling this is a season for fantasies i'm diving in sunshine, you're making the sun shine
we could pretend to live merrily

DUPLEX HOUSE

I'm too stupid for you. I'm too messed up with my view, too busy for your home. Too sorry for you.
It makes me blind but I'll learn it sometime, too.
I'll face your isolation, too. Yet I don't give my time to you.
Let's say it's all been said. Like I said.
We wonder why we kept distance each time we've met.
But soon, your family will come and we're together for a while.
We should celebrate. Let's bake a cake. Let's mix some fruit.
There's nothing like youth. Let's forget we'll all go away again.
Assemble the staff. I'm making a speech, we promise to get together again.
Like friends. We all grew up here, we belong to this house for so long.
Everyone. For what good is absence, there's nothing to do.
But soon, your family will come and we're together for a while.
We should celebrate. Let's bake a cake. Let's sing a song. Let's clap with our hands. Let's forget we will all go away again.
Let's play a game. Let's take a walk. There's so much to do.
And so much to talk about. Let's tidy up. Let's feed the ducks.
Let's dam the stream behind the house.

Leap Into My Fervid Arms

Leap into my fervid arms
your body is just right for me
no matter what the people say you and me on every day please don't punish my sympathy don't hide behind your irony don't think of any future time just that i'll be yours and you'll be mine put your decency in a cookie jar dig in tutored lawns and crash the car start crying around and you will be cured your teeth are forced to meet, you won't be endured but the universe will expand anyway the planet's shattered but we will make our day what you have to do to connect the dots is running up and down and get the hots

Keep shining like a big big sun
there should be enough rice for both of us to be strong Apparently, it's up to us to plant this tree
As we are flowers and we'll always be So leap into my fervid arms
your body is just right for me
no matter what the people say
earth will spin anyway

I'm A Bear

These stories that you tell, i dont know if they do well
But you know what to do in June, June, June
And i read what you write and you listen to my songs at night
but our lives go on too soon, soon, soon

Watch your step, don't be lazy or upset there's love to take, as well as friends to make and i'm a bear you know me, and if you are lonely come and be my guest, you'll see i give my best what about you?

In this fertile land, you may climb our willow trees and you may eat some honey from our honeybees

all you have to be is what you've always wanted all you have to do is what you've always wanted
